The President let it be known that he had outlined to Secretary Lansing the policy to be pursued toward Haiti as a result of the political and financial troubles which have shaken that as a result of the political and financial troubles which have shaken that country for a long time. What this policy is was not disclosed by the President, but it was understood that further efforts would be made to straighten out the finances of Haiti through some arrangement similar to the American collectorship now in effect in the Dominican Republic.

Told of Huerta's Arrest. Mr. Wilson was notified of the arrest on the Mexican border of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, but the investigation of the charges against the former Mexi-

Forney's History Traced.

COSHOCTON, Ohio, June 29 .- The arrest and prosecution of Thomas G. For ney in connection with the attack on his father-in-law, Franklin T. Schneider, is of unusual interest here, in his native county. Forney was born on a farm at Linton Mills, sixteen miles southeast of here. He is the son of Frank Forney, wealthy horse importer Young Forney attended the Linton

Young Forney attended the Linton Mills common schools and went afterwards to Adrian College, Adrian, Mich. Hie tried to earn his way, but was unable to do so and returned home, where he taught school, later going to Ohio State University at Columbus, being financed by his father. After a short time there he went to Ohio Northern University at Ada, Ohio, where he was graduated in law in 1912, and afterward went to Washington, attended a law college there, was admitted to the bar and engaged in practice.

WITH GEN. VILLA

Angeles is of striking appearance because of the direct, open quality of his gaze, flashing white teeth and everready smile. He is slightly bent-shouldered, as are most men who have spent days in the saddle. Were it not for his sunburned color, he might be taken for a United States man of affairs.

Gen. Angeles has been invited by the National Press Club to address its members in a confidential talk on Mexican affairs while he is visiting Washington, and his friends said today they would try to arrange this, if the general's engagements will permit. He is the only general who remained loyal to Madero, and took part in the fighting during the ten days' battle in the streets of Mexico City which ended with Madero's death. Madero had absolute confidence in him, and in an automobile went to Cuernavaca, where Angeles was, at the time Felix Diaz was having shells fired all over Mexico City, to get Angeles and bring him to Mexico City. Although warned, Madero was unwilling to remove Huerta from the command in Mexico City, and place Angeles in charge. Madero believed in Huerta's loyalty, although no one else did during that ten days, known as "de scene tragica" in Mexican history. When Huerta arrested alty, although no one eise did during that ten days, known as "de scene tragica" in Mexican history. When Huerta arrested Madero one of the first things the dictator did was to arrest Angeles and cast him in the penitentiary. He would have had him executed had it not been for the convigrity Angeles enjoyed with the rank popularity Angeles enjoyed with the rank and file of the army.

Angeles afterward escaped to France nd two years ago came back to the Unit

"Various press reports agree, according to this dispatch to the department from Vera Cruz under date of June 27, that the Zapatistas have assembled a force estimated at 25,000 troops to contest the entry of the Carranza forces. Most of these Zapatistas are outside the city in front of the positions occupied by Gen. Gonzales. It is reported that the troops of Gonzales have been defeated in the northern suburbs, losing ammunition and other military supplies. Other reports state that the Zapatistas are poorly equipped and that it is confirmed that the

Thousands of people in Mexico City are depending upon the supplies of the international relief committee, which itself is threatened with a shortage of provisions. Fears are entertained in the city that, aside from the famine, the reinforcements sent to Gen. Gonzales will cause him to carry the fighting into the capital, endangering the lives of foreigners and their property. Carranza's Agent Declares Four of the Mexican States Enjoy Peaceful Conditions last few days.

There was apparently among some of the adherents of Huerta a feeling that the general's arrest by United States officials would not materially affect developments in the new revolutionary movement. Some were inclined to believe that Huerta would act in an advisory capacity rather than take an active part in any operations that might be contemplated at this time.

Villa to Strengthen Garrison.

To supplement the efforts of the United States government toward preventing the entrance into Mexico of revolutionary factors from the American side of the border. In line with its policy, to prevent, if possible, further revolutionary movements in the southern republic, or at least the setting on foot of any such expeditions on American soil, the government purposes to prosecute vigorously violations of neutrality, regardless of the prominence of the individuals or their affiliations.

Possibility that others may be identified with the so-called Huerta conspiracy intensified interest here today in the investigation by agents of the pepartment of Justice into the situation. It is even intimated that citizens of one of the European belligerent nations are involved. It was also said that the Department of Justice was in possession of some evidence which seemed to connect Gen. Angeles, Villa's right-hand man, with the plot.
